GAS TAX BILL PASSES

Late News Flashes

GAINESVILLE, Ga.—(AP)—President Roosevelt declared Wednesday that national progress and prosperity "are being held back chiefly because of selfishness on the part of a few."

In a prepared outdoor address replete with fresh attacks on "special privilege" and the "feudal system" which he ranked with fascism, the president also bluntly told Georgia and the lower South that their wages were "far too low."

He called for "cooperation all along the line" to rebuild the nation on sounder lines.

"We propose to go forward, not back," he said.

Rice purchased from Rogers, for use as a dance hall, the second floor of a two-story frame building situated on a street corner. He was also given the use of a stairway. The building is so ancient that the city forbids any more dances to be held until the building has been repaired. Rice offers to pay for the necessary construtiion work, but Rogers will not permit it. He insists that he is going to let the building fall down and then replace it with a filling station. Rice commences an action against Rogers to require him to keep the supports to the secomn floor in safe condition and for damages for failure to do so and for authority to make necessary repairs if Rogers fails to do so.

Should Rice recover?

Livestock Auction Sale Growing Here

Total of More Than $10,000 Changes Hands Every Week

The Sutton-Collier livestock auction sale is without doubt the largest in this section of the state with total sales every week exceeding $10,000.

In the Tuesday sale this week 312 cattle, 105 horses and mules, and 189 hogs were sold for a total of $10,223.50 which is more than double the amount sold a year ago.

The steady growth of this sale is largely due to the splendid prices paid here for livestock. Many cattle owners from Louisiana, Oklahoma, and Texas patronize the sale every week.

If the sale continues to grow the owners will be forced to secure larger and better quarters and are making plans to do so in the near future.

Business Decline in State Checked

Increase in Farm Marketing Is Shown in U. of A. Survey

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. A check in the business decline in Arkansas in February is reported in a survey made by the University of Arkansas college of business administration. The survey appears in the Arkansas Business Bulletin for March.

Cash farm prices which had declined 34 per cent from their high recovered slightly with the signing of the new farm bill. The increase in farm marketings together with strong farm prices maintained farm income about 8 per cent above a year ago.

Lumber payrolls increased in February, the survey shows, although a seasonal decline is usual at this time of year. Petroluem production continues at the high rate of 1,300,000 brarels per month compared with 800,000 at this time last year.

Although the total income is only slightly below a year ago, total retail sales are 16 per cent lower. Change in sentiment is probably responsible for retail sales showing a greater decline than total income. Sales of more durable and expensive items declined most. Automobile sales are about 30 per cent below the corresponding period of last year.

The tourist business reflects the most favorable conditions as compared to a year ago. Gasoline sales were also appreciably higher, amounting to 11,300,000 gallons compared with 10,200,000 gallons.

Morgan Dismissed as TVA Chief by Roosevelt Order

Attorney General Upholds F. D. R. in Removing Chairman

EFFECTIVE AT ONCE

President Cites Reasons in Letter Sent to Congress

WASHINGTON. — (AP) — President Roosevelt, advising congress Wednesday he had ousted Arthur E. Morgan from the TVA, said it was "clearly the right" of the legislature o make "any fair inquiry" into TVA's administration or policies.

The president ordered Morgan's removal from the TVA chairmanship Tuesday, to become effective Wednesday.

With his message, the president sent to the capital a letter from Robert H. Jackson, acting taotrney general, upholding the president's right to remove TVA board members from office.

Morgan, long engaged in a fight with other directors of the power agency, was ready to resist the chief executive's order, and critics of TVA were eager to bar the agency's secrets in a congressional investigation.

Mr. Roosevelt elevated Vice Chairman Harcourt A. Morgan to the chairmanship. He has aligned himself with Director David E. Lilienthal in opposing the policies of Arthur E. Morgan. It was said that the vacancy on the board might be filled, possibly by the appointment of James L. Fly, now TVA's general counsel.

President Cites Reasons

Behind Mr. Roosevelt's action lay the record of his personal investigation of TVA, in which Chairman Morgan refused to take more than a limited part on the ground that a congressional investigation was needed. Referring to these proceedings, the president, in a letter to Morgan, cited reasons for removing him as follows:

"Openly making grave and libelous charges of dishonesty and want of integrity against your fellow-directors without reasonable excuse or justification.

"Obstructing the work of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

"Refusing to submit to the demand of the chief executive for facts upon which you relied in openly making grave and libelous charges of dishonesty and want of integrity against your fellow-directors and refusing to respond to questions of the chief executive relating to charges of obstruction made against you by your fellow directors."

The president added:

"I have taken note of the fact that you have not presented to me in person or in writing any reason why I should not remove you."

Denies Opposition

The president denied statements that he was opposed to a congressional investigation of TVA. Such statements, he said, had been made by special writers and columnists and contained not one word of truth.

TVA Has Spent More Than $151,000,000 in 5 Years

N.E.A. Correspondent Shows What Taxpayers Have Received for Their Money From Roosevelt Proposal

By WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—(AP) -Clouds of suspicion hanging low over the Tennessee Valley, and administrative jangling over dtails of policy and procedure cannot hide from any visitor the mighty proportions of the work that is going on here.

In this natural river-valley area, including parts of seven states, more than $151,000,000 of the people's money has been spent by the Tennessee Valley Authority. It is now engaged in spending $44,000,000 more, appropriated and authorized by the last session of Congress.

This TVA was proposed by President Roosevelt in 1933, as "a corporation clothed with the power of government but possessed of the flexibility and initiative of a private enterprise. It should be charged with the broadest duty of planning for the proper use, conservation, and development of the natural resources of the basin . . . for the general social and economic welfare of the nation. This Authority should also be clothed with the necessary power to carry these plans into effect."

Reviewing First Five Years

That is a good statement of what was done shortly afterward by Congress in creating the TVA. It has been functioning now for five years, and although its plans look forward for 20, 50, 2000 years, what actually has been done in these first five may properly be reviewed.

First, TVA put in shape and improved for actual operation the old Muscle Shoals plant, including the Nitratt Plant No. 2 which had cost $70,000,000. Some $300,000 has been spent there for improvements and additions, making the plant ready for possible wartime use in making the plant ready for possible war-time use in producing phosphorus, in addition to its present functions in river control, navigation locking, power production, and fertilizer manufacture and experiment.

Flood Control Benefits

Second, the great Norris Dam on the Clinch river and the Joe Wheeler Dam on the Tennessee, have been completed. The former has cost almost $37,000,000, the latter $30,000,000 to date.

Within a month after Norris Dam was completed in the spring of 1936, its value in flood-control was tested. Experts are certain that stopping the flow of the Clinch at Norris prevented $750,000 worth of damage at Chattanooga alone.

In the disastrous floods of January, 1937, TVA experts believe their combined operations on the Tennessee reduced the Ohio river flood crest by six inches at Cairo, where the waters were barely held back by a temporary mud box on top of the levee.

Had the levee broken, $15,000,000 in damages would have followed. TVA believes any insurance company would have been glad to allow $1,500,000 for

Board to Consider Phipp's Position

No Comment Offered on Reports That Official May Be Ousted

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)— Speculation over the future status of Education commissioner W. E. Phipps, revived Wednesday in advance of a meeting of the state board of education headed by Governor Carl E. Bailey here Thursday.

Both Bailey and Phipps declined to comment on reports that an attempt would be made to oust Phipps, recently mentioned as a possible appointee to the presidency of Henderson State Teachers College at Arkadelphia.

Bailey appointed Dr. Herman L. Brown, Malver, as the board of education member from the sixth congressional district succeeding Harvey C. Couch, Pine Bluff, utilities executive, whose term has expired.

The Arkansas Democrat said the possibility of Phipp's removal came up at a conference between six house members and Bailey over the status of school funds and pending appropriation bills before the special session.

When one representatvie suggested that Phipps be called to the conference to present figures dealing with school funds, the Democrat said the governor was quoted as saying:

"I don't think it will be necessary to ask Mr. Phipps because within a few days, he will have no interest in what is going on in the state department of education."

Representative Lyle Brown of Arkadelphia told the house last week there was a move under way to remove President J. R. Womack of Henderson State Teachers College and appoint Phipps in his place. A scheduled meeting of the college board here last week failed to materialize.

Barksdale Pilot Killed in Crash

Flier Identified as Major Robert H. Finley of Shreveport

MERIDIAN, Miss.—(AP)—An army plane en route from Maxwell Field, Montgomery, Ala., to Barksdale Field, Shreveport, crashed 13 miles southwest of here late Tuesday, killing its pilot, tentatively identified as Major Finley.

The demolished plane was discovered shortly before 10 p. m. by a farmer living in the vicinity of the crash.

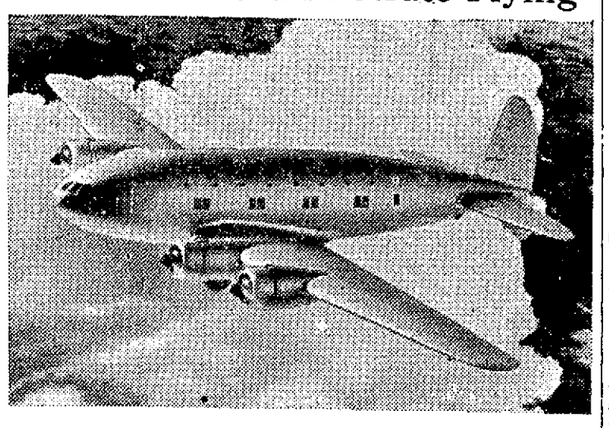

The farmer said the ship caught fire after ripping a path through a wooded sector. He said the body of the pilot was badly burned and that his insignia was missing. No identification papers were found.

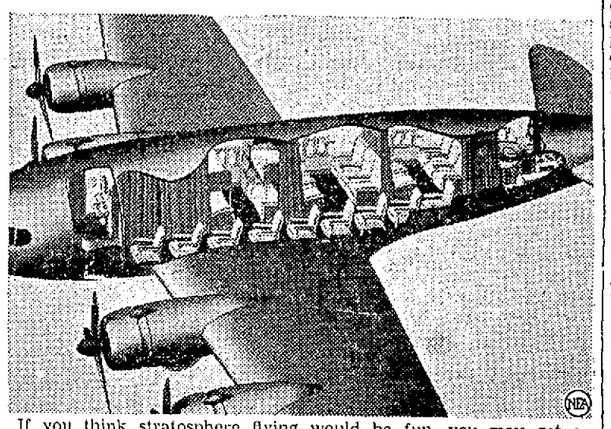

The body was bidly mangled. Parts of the plane were scattered over a wide area.

The farmer notified officials at a nearby Civilian Conservation Corps camp, giving them the plane's markings. The CCC officers relayed the information to Moxwell Field.

Because butterflies bly by day, while moths are night-flyers, the former are common sights to the most casual observer. There are, however, numerous ways of telling them apart.

The Last Word in Strato-Flying

If you think stratosphere flying would be fun, you may get a chance to try it this summer, for the Boeing Aircraft Company in Seattle is ready to start turning out "Stratoliners" such as pictured above. Built for Pan-American Airways and Transcontinental & Western Air, the ships will be the first large transport planes to be equipped with sealed and "altitude conditioned" cabins for travel in the substratosphere. The top picture is an artist's conception of how the plane will look in the air. Below is a cutaway view showing interior of the plane, which will carry 33 passengers at 240 miles an hour at an altitude of 20,000 feet. Up front, right behind the control cabin, is a men's dressing room. Next are four passenger compartments, one with berths made up for night travel. At the rear is the women's dressing room and the cooking galley. Single seats along the side will be used for short trip passengers.

Vesey Measure to Reduce State Tax on Gas One Cent

Reduction Measure Now Goes to the Senate for Action

QUESTION LEGALITY

Attorney General Says Vesey Bill Would Violate Refunding Act

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — The house passed by a vote of 67 to 20 Wednesday a bill by Representative John P. Vesey of Hempstead county, to reduce the state gasoline tax from 6:5 to 5.5 cents per gallon, despite the marnings by opponents that the measure would be held invalid in courts as a violation of the 1934 bond refunding act.

The senate completed amending the Nichols-Nyberg tuberculosis sanatoria bill and made it a question for final passage a special order of business for Thursday morning.

The senate passed, 29 to 4, the Thompson bill to increase intrasit tax on automobile caravans from $1.50 to $3 per car.

On re-consideration of a motion, the senate defeated for a second time Wednesday a bill to appropriate $10,000 for the purchase of a sprinkler system for the state capitol grounds.

Will Let People Vote

The senate passed, 30 to 0, the house bill to refer to the people at the November general election a proposal that the state assume outstanding obligations of bridge improvement districts and municipal street improvement districts on continuations of state highways.

The principal amendment to the sanatoria bill was a section levying a 60-cent per case export tax on liquor intended to apply to sales for shipments into dry states.

The amendment also would provide a 30-cent per case export tax on wine.

Liquor Dealer's Money

The Arkansas Democrat said Wednesday that "Revenue Commissioner Z. M. McCarroll had more than $5,000 in state funds with which to pay confidential agents when he took office December 1."

Commenting in connection with the current senate investigation into the $1,500 per month fund contributed to the department by wholesale liquor dealers for undercover liquor law enforcement, the newspaper said it had checked records in the state auditor's office, and charged that the commissioner's private secretary and other assistants in the department had been paid from the fund.

Holt's Ruling

Attorney General Jack Holt held the legislature could reduce the state gasoline tax one-fourth of a cent per gallon without violating the 1934 refunding act.

In an opinion requested by Representative John P. Vesey, Hempstead, Holt said any further reduction would "violate the covenants made with the owners of Arkansas highway obligations in the refunding act."

The maximum amount which could be added to the county turnback fund for farm-to-market road work, Holt held, was that amount "equal to the revenue derived from one-fourth of a cent a gallon tax on gasoline."

Lumber Dealers in Favor Amendment

Enactment of Compensation Law Endorsed by Lumber Men

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The Arkansas Association of Lumber Dealers in annual convention adopted a resolution urging support of the Arkansas state Chamber of Commerce's movement for submission of a constitutional amendment to make it possible for the legislature to enact a workmen's compensation law.

The resolution said that lack of such an act was retarding the progress and development of the state and was creating a hardship on the building industry.

The association also adopted a resolution to petition congress for repeal of the undistributed net profits tax on corperations or amendment of the law to enable corporations to operate with prudence in the accumulation of reasonable surpluses without being subjected to the tax.

The resolution asserted that the result of the tax had been to stifle the

Step Toward Solution of Parking Problem

ASK the average American what he is looking for in this life and chances are he will answer "a parking space." Traffic congestion and parking are problems that concern the small town just about as much as the large city.

For that reason New York City's decision to make permanent the ban on parking on 10 midtown streets is of interest to many people.

THE "express streets" had been on trial in New York since January 3. Police liked the idea. So did motorists. The parking ban will soon be tried on 10 additional streets.

Other metropolitan centers can now be expected to follow New York's lead. In doing so they will finally give ear to advice which traffic experts have been passing out for some time.

And that advice is that the only real solution to the problems of congestion and parking lies in, first, elimination of parking on all but the widest and least traveled of city streets and, second, provision for off-street areas to accommodate not only the cars usually parked on the streets but also the even greater number of cars people are driving around the block in the vain hope that they will find a place to leave them.

The experts believe further that city planning should provide for conversion of low value real estate into parking space.

DOWN in Argentina, the forward-loowing city of Buenos Aires is showing the way to a motorists' Utopia by constructing the world's widest street—with subways beneath it to provide parking pace for 3000 cars. This plan appeases the honest objection of merchants who say that elimination of street parking also eliminates a part of their business.

Parking is the prime sausative factor in traffic congestion.

Consider a 100-yard block on a busy artery. Only 18 cars can park in 100 yards; that would bt 36 cars for both sides of the street. But the pavement left for moving cars may serve more than 2000 an hour.

Thus a few parked cars clog the street and slow hp traffic for many times that number of moving cars.

New York has taken the first step toward a sensible solution of what are probably America's most universally irritating problems; parking and traffic. Simply stated the one practical course seems to be:

Provide adequate off-street space—and then get the parked cars off the busy streets.

When that is done life will be a lot more pleasant for a lot of people: Saturday night on Main srtet of a midwestern town will be no more of a drivers' nightmare than will 5 o'clock in the afternoon on 33d street in New York City.

Deglamorizing War

ONE of the biggest handicaps to World Peace has been the fact that war—at least the preview put on for the folks back home—possesses a glamor that the abstract idea of peace lacks entirely. The brass buttons, the shiny metals, the well-tailored uniforms all make young girl's hearts go thump thump, women's eyes grow misty and men's chests swell with pride of country. There is something about a soldier.

And so the news from London that the uniforms the British war office is trying out look very much like something a garage mechanic would put on before tackling a very messy job comes as a welcome bit to those who think war is a thing to be avoided—even if that means missing out on a pretty good show as the boys march to get their heads blown off.

The British soldiers are modeling two new types of uniform, both made of denim and both looking like overalls.

Adaption of either uniforme would make Tommy Atkins an unromantic figure indeed. That would be good. The sooner war is completely debunked and deglamorized the sooner this unhappy world will know peace.

Diet Usually Will Reduce the Overweight Child.

(No. 481)

After it has been decided from a suitable study that a child is overweight, it will be necessary to work out a suitable diet in order to aid in weight reduction. There is no exact single weight for every boy and girl of a certain age or even a certain age and height. Neither parents nor children should be disturbed about excessive weight until it is more than 15 or 20 per cent different from the average for the same age and height. It must be remembered that children from southern and eastern European nations are usually shorter and stockier and broader than those of other nations.

Overweight children tend to become fatigued easily and for that reason do not exercise as much. Because they do not exercise and because they sit a good deal, they have bad posture. The lack of exercise, the excess of fat and the occasionally disturbed emotional state makes such children less healthful in general than are others. There are, of course, some instances in which children are abnormal in relationship to weight because of disturbed glandular conditions. As has already been emphasized, this fact must be determined by a physician.

In the majority of cases the use of the restricted diet will take care of the condition satisfactorily.

Following is a diet list recommended particularly for fat children from 6 to 12 years of age.

The daily diet should include the following:

One quart of skimmed milk, 1 egg, 1 serving of meat, chicken, fish or liver; 3 or 4 large servings of vegetables listed; 3 servings of juicy fruits, one of which should be raw; 1 teaspoonful cod liver oil. (Because of diet restrictions, this is important and should not be omitted.)

The following concentrated foods should be avoided: Jelly, jam, sugar, candy, peanut butter, nuts, cake, cookies, ice cream, potatoes, corn, dried beans, gravy and starchy foods in general. In addition, highly spiced foods are not desirable.

Vegetables permitted: Class 1—lettuce, spinach, tomatoes, celery, cauliflower, string beans, asparagus, chard, cabbage, sauerkraut. Class 2—peas, carrots, beets, turnips, parsnips, onions, rutabagas, eggplant, squash.

Three vegetables daily may be chosen from Class 1, but not more than two from Class 2.

Suggested schedule: Breakfast—Fresh fruit, 1 egg, ½ slice of toast, 1 glass of skimmed milk, 1 teaspoonful of butter (use with toast or egg). Dinner: One serving of meat, fish, chicken or liver; ½ cup of cooked vegetable; 3 or 4 leaves of lettuce or celery stalks; ½ slice of bread; 1 teaspoonful of butter; 1 serving of fresh fruit; one glass of skimmed milk. Mid-afternoon: 1 glass of skimmed milk. Supper: Soup made with vegetable or milk and vegetable; egg, cottage cheese or small serving of meat; ½ cup of vegetable; 1 serving of fruit; 1 glass of skimmed milk.

RAISING A FAMILY

Dad's Ideas of Fun Can Make Son Timid—Horseplay May Turn Natural Fear Into Phobia

(No. 45)

We don't know exactly what is going on in a baby's mind. But one thing has been decided on, and that is fear. The bugaboo has come right into this world with him, strange to say. Two bad fears are quite noticeable; one is the fear of falling, the other dread of constriction.

Somemother, it will be wise to avoid anything that increases this natural fright. Later obsessions are sometimes based upon early experiences that parents have never suspected at the time.

Babies today are no longer "swaddled," thank goodness. They are dressed in almost nothing at all for many weeks, and even when they don real clothes to take the place of the didy, shirt and sweater, the dresses are short and allow for kicking. This is not a physical advantage alone, but also a mental one.

The baby senses strength and security. This is undermined if he is made into a football by daddy, too early in his new life; daddy, who is determined to make a brave lad of his son. Well, father, you may actually be fixing in him a fear that will feed on itself later on. So instead of having a hero you may have a regular rabbit. Cowardice, so called, is never really any child's fault. It begins somewhere 'way back and defies examination.

A maid dropped me when I was a tiny baby. Today, a height not only makes me ill, but the thought of one dismays me.

Fear of height has many cousins. The child who fears this may add to it many ways. He keeps on building.

Then there is something else that I consider important. We are forever talking about inferiority. Why is it that some children have it and others escape? Because the "makings" of inferiority are somehow born in a baby.

If this were not true, then why does the baby cry or hang his head after the first few weeks of life, when somebody mocks him or laughs at his little attempts to do things? Humiliation is one of the first noticeable traits of infancy. Maybe the family does not set much store by his crying, or his refusal to repeat a little trick, but there it is, his self consciousness and his hurt, all ready to spring into life.

He won't mind being laughed "with," but "at" is different. Maybe it is best not to pay too much attention at all to his cute baby tricks. He is smart, however, and senses the difference between pride and teasing almost every time.

Tomorrow: Proper comfort.

LOVE LAUGHS AT THE DOCTOR

CAST OF CHARACTERS

CONSTANCE MAIDWELL—heroine; the stand-in.

DEREK MANTHON—an artist who loved money first.

HILDEGARDE THORVALD—Derek painted her portrait.

DR. ROGERS—he met his most difficult case.

Yesterday: The Rogers date brings a reprimand for Constance and the same day she reads that a romance is rumored between Derek and Hilda. Connie did not read any further.

CHAPTER XII

CONSTANCE did not read beyond that first sentence. It seemed to her hours before she was able to look up and say in a voice that sounded reasonably like her own, "I didn't know there was any one naive enough to buy this comic sheet. The last I heard they were drumming up publicity by paying people to sue them for libel."

But she knew they had seen her face in that first moment.

When she slipped out of the store that night, a man stepped from a parked car, hastily threw away a cigaret, and stood in her path. Under the entrance light, his uncovered head shone with copper lights.

"Are you weeping on any one's shoulder tonight?" he asked.

"Go away," said Constance. "The last time I talked to you I got my hands slapped. We do not associate with the male relatives of our customers."

"There aren't any customers in my family any more," Dr. Mark Rogers said with a brief smile. "We spent all our money the other day—thanks to you."

He held the car door open.

"Please get in," he suggested. "I'd like to talk to you."

WELL, well; Constance thought. Just like that! . . . But, after all, why not? (She thought of Derek.) He probably only wants to take my temperature or make sure I'm getting plenty of sleep.

As she hesitated, she was vastly amused to see him take out his watch and glance at it hastily.

"Don't let me keep you," she said with malice, "if someone is choking to death or something. But I thought you were on a vacation now."

"It's no vacation now." He was definitely not the philandering type of male. He looked worried and a little embarrassed. "I—but we'll talk about that later. I'm counting on a good meal to put you into a receptive frame of mind—at Daimler's, shall we say?" With a flicker of a smile he finished dryly, "I want to park you somewhere where you'll feel that you have the protection of sane human beings when you decide that I've gone crazy."

After a brief hesitation Constance laughed in spite of herself. He looked so desperately in earnest, and at the same time so uncomfortably aware that he must look ridiculous.

"All right," she said. "I shouldn't be human if I weren't curious."

When they were settled at a table, and Dr. Rogers had ordered—sidecars, blue points, planked steak with mushrooms and fresh asparagus, a salad, an ice, and coffee—he said, with a crooked little smile, "Thank God the orchestra's at the other end of the room. I couldn't do this to music without making it sound as melodramatic as it unquestionably is. . . . Did anyone ever tell you," he demanded abruptly, "that you look like Camilla Wynne?"

"Why, yes," Constance admitted after a bewildered pause. "But I never felt inordinately set up about it."

"Ever seen her—on the screen, I mean?"

"And heard her."

On a mischievous impulse Constance leaned an elbow languorously on the table, rested her chin on her palm, and looking up at him under fluttering lids, said in a throaty, breathless voice, "I understand, Doctor. You want me to tell him a bedtime story. . . . But is it really kind? Sometime, you know, he's bound to wake up—and tha' hurts. . . . I know. That's"—she smiled bravely, brushed away an unshed tear, and finished on a tremulous note—"that's one of the things you have taught me."

WORDS, gesture, and intonation were lifted bodily from one of Camilla Wynne's most popular impersonations—the role of the nurse in "A Doctor's Best Friend."

The man across the table gave such a whole-hearted shout of delight that Constance could not help warming toward him.

"I say," he demanded, "how long could you keep that up?"

"Until you screamed for help," Constance said. "Since my friends discovered the fatal resemblance, it's been my one and only parlor trick. . . . Why?"

"Because Camilla Wynne got herself knocked out in an automobile crash this morning. That's what this is all about."

He had sobered so abruptly that Constance said after a moment of incredulous silence, "You're not by any chance suggesting that I double for the femme fatale, are you? I thought you were a physician, not a . . ."

"If you want to check up on me, go to the telephone and call the Fort Wayne Hospital," he told her with deadly earnestness. "I don't belong in this part of the country, but they know me there. . . . On second thought, perhaps I'd better drive you around to the hospital. We'll just about have time."

CONSTANCE said weakly, "You're the most incredible man I ever met. But I admit, I'm still curious."

"I'm a little hazy about some of the details, myself. I got them over long distance from California. You see, the driver of the car in which Camilla Wynne was riding was the son of a patient of mine. Miss Wynne is not badly hurt, I understand. But the boy—well, aside from other desperate injuries, he is on the verge of a complete nervous collapse. You see, he's in love with Miss Wynne, and he's convinced that he killed her. Only the sight of her—or someone he can be persuaded to take for her—will pull him through the immediate nervous crisis, and give him a chance for his life. . . . And Miss Wynne is flat on her back for several days, at least. That's where you come in."

"Oh, do I?" Constance wondered if she were dreaming.

"It was so clearly indicated that I had my hotel order reservations for both of us on the 8:30 plane for Los Angeles."

"You're suggesting that I set out with you—an almost complete stranger—in an hour and a half, to fly to California?"

"Exactly that. . . . All right—now shout for the police."

While she was still searching for words, a party of four men passed their table. One of them checked his steps, turned, and called pleasantly, "Good evening, Dr. Rogers. Run in and see me again before you leave town, won't you? I have a patient I'd like to—why, good evening, Miss Maidwell—or I should say—" at something he must have seen in Constance's face, he broke off, and finishing a little awkwardly, "Well, glad to have seen you," hurried after his companions.

"Know him?" Mark Rogers asked.

"I ought to. He's Dr. Ardmore, my physician," Constance said. . . . She thought, "He started to call me Mrs. Manthon."

"May we consider that I am properly identified, or shall I call him back?" the man opposite her asked. "The time. I'll have to remind you, is getting short."

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Civil War Book by Hervey Allen

The Civil War is once more becoming a popular field for the novelists (you can probably blame Margaret Mitchell, in part) and the novelists had better watch out; for they have been back and forth over this field so many times that the man who has nothing in particular to say runs the risk of seeing to rtell a very old story.

Hervey Allen skirts the edges of this risk in his new novel, "Action at Aqualia" (Farrar and Rinehart: $2.50). He has taken some of his ingredients from stock—northern officer, beautiful southern lady, burned mansion, romance-across-the-lines, nad so on—and in consequence you occasionally get a vague feeling that you have read it all before.

To be sure, he does his best to avoid it. His beautiful southern lady is an Englishwoman by birth, his northern officer is a middleaged colonel instead of a dashing young captain, and he does have a real understanding of the fact that the Civil War was a very bloody and dirty affair indeed, which has been prettified only by the passing of a great many years.

But his story gets prettified, occasionally, in spite of him. The one battle scene he allows himself is realistic and grim enough, heaven knows—yet that faint tinge of swords-and-roses romance does appear here and there. Apparently it is the fault of the theme, and not of Mr. Allen.

"Action at Aquila" is much less ambitious than "Anthony Adverse," and much less lengthy—which is all to the good. It is a swift and entertaining tale, it will undoubtedly bea best-seller, and it probably will make an excellent moving picture.

But when, oh when, is some novelist going to write the really great book which the Civil War calls for?

HOLLYWOOD.—Short takes: Quite a number of "March parties" are being given these days, perhaps in celebration of the colony's deliverance from the flood and the income tax deadline. A "March party" is one of those gay soirees where you go in like a lion and go out like a light.

Director David Butler's Alice Faye (a horse) finally won a race, but not until Miss Faye herself and almost everyone else at the studio had gone broke betting on the nag. Alice Faye (the actress) sufered a merciless barrage of ribbing, climaxed on the day a horse fly was found buzzing around the microphone. She was so mad she whinnied.

Freddie Bartholomew has stumbled onto a way of appreciably stretching out his small spending allowance. He has a checking account and writes checks even for the smallest purchases—a dime's worth of candy, a quarter's worth of magazines. Few of these checks are ever turned in at the bank for payment; creditors keep 'em for the autographs.

Screaming Star

The furious jealousy of a well-known comedienne has cheated a less important (but more deserving) actress out of an hilarious scene in a new picture. The star screamed until the scene was cut—and the studio let her get away with it!

A French director, Jacques Duvivier, who hates Hollywood, has been handling a second unit on "Marie Antoinette," mostly doing mob scenes. But the other day he also tried to tell John Barrymore how to act. To anyone interested I will send Barrymore's reply by express, C. O. D. It wouldn't go through the mails.

In "The Woman Habit," Isabel Jeans has to kick Kay Francis. Two kicks were delivered, but the first one won't be seen on the screen. It was given so enthusiastically that Miss Francis sprawled on the floor.

The Misses Eleanor Powell and Katharine Hepburn are quarreling with their studios. Miss Hepburn wants better stories, so that she can really act. Miss Powell wants lighter stories, with less histrionics and more hoofing. Maybe Metro and RKO could trade.

Cucamonga, Cucamonga

W. C. Fields, who has a voice in the preparation of his pictures, is driving Paramount executives crazy by his insistence that his next flicker be titled "The First Gentleman of Cucamonga." People keep telling him that no theater could get that many letters on a marquee sign, but Fields won't listen. He thinks the name "Cucamonga" is very funny, and goes around rolling it on his tongue.

Help Wanted—Male: Are you beautiful and dumb, strong and silent? Do you shun society and feel at home in the treetops, among the squirrels? Can you beat your chest without coughing? Can you wear leopard-skin pants without suspenders? Do people refer to you as "that big ape?" Do you want to be a movie star? If so, you may be just the Tarzan that Sol Lesser, head of Principal Productions, is looking for. Send application, together with photo, by jungle telegraph, prepaid.

Pet peeve of the week: The news that Metro will film "The Wizard of Oz" with real people, and with Judy Garland in the role of Dorothy. Miss Garland is a shot-cha Hollywood debutante, and a precociously developed one at that, so they'll probably have her introducing swing music to the Emeral City and teaching the Tin Woodman to dance the Big Apple. I hope the ghost of L. Frank Baum gives Samuel Goldwyn a good haunting for not sellin gthe rights to the Oz books to Walt Disney.

"There's only one kind os Social Security for chorus girls," said Freida, the tall brunet who hoofs in most of the major musicals, "and that's saving all the letters of guys who can more than $500 a week."

And Martin Greene observes that with airlines offering free passage to the wives of male travelers, a new type of mitch-luker will probably start hanging around the airports.

Hold Everything!

There's a gracious softness about this afternoon dress with full sleeves, straight skirt, and high-in-front waistline. Gathers create a becoming fullness over the bust. These smart details have a decidedly slimming effect. Pattern 8188 is one of those satisfying fashions, simple enough for general wear, and formal enough for afternoons at the club or bridge table.

The pattern is so explicit, and the detailed sew chart so complete that even beginners can easily follow the directions.

Pattern 8188 should be made up in pliant materials like chiffon, georgette or silk crepe in plain colors or small flower prints. It's the ideal black dress, too. If you once make it for spring, you'll certainly want it later on in cool voile or tub silk.

Pattern 8188 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 39-inch material.

MRS. SID HENRY TELEPHONE 321

There's a little garden that I love,
As secret as a child, a gentle place,
And there, like smiles across a well-loved face,
The quiet lights and shadows seem to move.
Then rising rosy from the morning mist,
The flowers stand a-tiptoe in their beds,
And, all aquiver, lift their little heads
Like eager children wiong to be kissed.
And there the lilies, when the breezes pass,
Like gracious ladies curtsey from their height;
And the warm roses, tremulous with delight,
Lavish their glowing petals to the grass.
Sometimes the moonlight lulls the languid breeze,
And, spreading the garden hushed and fair,
With silent music fills the listening air . . .
And drips like fluent silver from the trees.
There may I neatly lay my will away,
Safe in the secret of the brooding close,
Where breezes scattering sweetness from the rose
Drift through my heart and scatter its dismay.—Selected.

At the Saenger

Epic saga of the West and the story of how law and order supplanted the reign of the six-gun, "The Bad Man of Brimstone," starring Wallace Beery, will open at the Saenger Thursday.

Famous for his portrayals of bad man roles, Berry, as leader of a gang of outlaws who rule the town of Brimstone, is offered one of the finest opportunities of his long cinematic career.

Filmed against scenes of rugged grandeur in the Zion National Forest of Utah, "The Bad Man of Brimstone" is the story of a gangster of the '80's whose reign is niterrupted when he distovers that a stranger who is attempting to clean up Brimstone is his own son.

The part of the son is taken by Dennis O'Keefe, new discovery. O'Keefe falls in love with the daughter of Brimstone's crooked judge, Virginia Bruce.

Occupying prominent spots in the picture are Joseph Callein, Lewis Stone, Guy Kibbee, Bruce Cabot, Cliff Edwards, Guinn Williams, Arthur Hohl, Robert Gleckler, Noah Berry, Scotty Beckett and nearly a dozen other equally well-known players.

Romance, comedy and gripping drama blend swiftly in the action of the production and the roar of a six-shooter begins and ends it.

General Charles Lee, of the American Army of Revolutionary days, loved dogs better than men. He took them with him on his marches and they often ate with him at the table, sitting on their haunches in chairs.

"Chisler"

Attempting to dodge photographers, Stanley Jasosky, 22, is shown as he was arraigned in Federal Court in Newark, N. J. charged with writing six ransom notes demanding $30,000 from Murray Levine, of New Rochelle, father of long-missing 12-year-old Peter Levine. Authorities say Jasosky's were only a few of hundreds of notes received which attempted to "chisel in" on the kidnaping.

TVA Has Spent

six inches difference in the water level at Cairo at that moment.

$140,000,000 Worth of Dams

Third, the TVA has almost finished the Pickwick Landing Dam, which is 90 per cent complete at a cost to date of about $30,000,000, is storing water and having its power-generating equipment installed at present.

The Guntersville Dam is half finished ($20,000,000), Chickamauga Dam is about 36 per cent complete ($15,500,000), and Hiwassee Dam is 22 per cent finished ($4,700,000).

A million and a half has been put into preliminary work surveying and planning the proposed Gilbertsville Dam, now regarded as the key to the whole system.

Thus an overwhelming proportion of TVA's total expenditures have gone for actual construction of river dams and their adjuncts.

All these engineering works as such have been carried on with remarkable efficiency, and there has been virtually no criticism of the construction of the completed works as engineering projects. In fact, engineers and writers from all over the world are constantly coming to see them and departing with admiration.

Small Washington Staff

The TVA now has 11,181 employes, only 10 of whom are in Washington, making it certainly the smallest capital staff of any great government agency. At Knoxville headquarters there are almost 2000. On individual projects there are 1000 at Chattanooga, 1000 at Chickamauga, 1800 at Guntersville, 700 at Hiwassee, 1700 at Pickwick, 200 at Wheeler, 460 at Norris, 1700 at Wilson, the remainder scattered about the Valley area.

Nearly 40,000 families are now getting TVA power through municipalities, co-operatives, and direct. TVA received for this power $1,233,091 from July 1, 1937, to January 31, 1938. This income is growing. For February, 1938, it was $199,421, compared to $91,028 in February, 1937.

About 2900 miles of rural electric lines are being operated to distribute this TVA power.

River Traffic Increased

The dream of river transport has already been realized to some extent, and large steamers have come up the Tennessee as far as Muscle Shoals. River traffic on the Tennessee has already exceeded pre-depression levels, and many waterfront sites have bten brought by private companies, anticipating heavier traffic in future.

More than 50,000,000 trees have been set in the fight against erosion, and 4500 farms have been check-dammed or otherwise protected against too rapid runoff.

In 17 states, 24,000 test-demonstration farms are trying out superphosphate plant foods developed by TVA and made in the electric furnace at Wilson Dam. Valuable experimentation on producing phosphate plant-food has been carried out, and reserves of phosphate rock have been bought for the governmtnt. More than 80,000 tons of superphosphate plant food has been produced and distributed.

Families Moved Elsewhere

More than 400,000 acres of land have been bought for the dams and surrounding developments at prices that would average around $50 an acre. More than 8000 families whose homes stood in the way of the developments were bought out and aided in re-establishing themselves elsewhere.

Two TVA nurseries at Clinton and Wilson Dam produced 18,600,000 tree seedlings during the past fiscal year alone.

Two parks at Norris and Big Rdige have been developed in cooperation with the National Park Service and the CCC, whose facilities are rented out to the public.

Valuable research has been made in the use of native clays and electric firing to produce pottery of a kind new imported.

There are many other activities, but this sketches the progress of a gigantic project which is still, after five years, considered as "in the construction stage."

Oil Firms Remove Men From Mexico

Evacuations Described as Only Precautionary Measure

MEXICO CITY.—(AP)—Operators of Mexico's expropriated foreign petroleum industry Tuesday rushed evacuation of American and other foreign workers from isolated areas where "Mexico and Mexicans" sentiment mounted.

The evacuations, described as purely precautionary, proceeded as thousands of students paraded here and the Confederation of Mexican Workers ordered a nationwide "jubilee" for Wednesday.

Officials of the 17 British and American companies affected sai dthey hoped to get all foreigners out of remote fields and camps during the night.

They emphasized there had been no reports of violence or disorder.

Three planes were chartered by the Aguila company, largest of the expropriated concerns to remove 35 Americans and 54 employees of other nationalists, with their families, from the Isthmus of Tehuantepec zone.

President Lazaro Cardenas assured Mexican industry expropriation was not contemplated against any other business. He described the case of the oil business as "exceptional."

United States Ambassador Josephus Daniels called on Cardenas late Tuesday for a 45-minute talk concerning the oil situation. He refused to discuss what happened at the meeting.

He did disclose that he acted on Secretary Hull's telephoned instructions. Some observers considered it significant he went directly to the chief executive instead of the foreign secretary.

An authoritative palace source said that Daniels voiced Secretary Hull's hope a settlement might be devised, and that Cardenas again protested his friendship for the United States.

Ghost of Dead Industry Floats Down Its 'Styx'

The end of a proud industry—once one of the greatest in Pennsylvania—was written as the huge log raft above floated down the west branch of the Susquehanna river toward the state capital at Harrisburg. The rafting industry—tying white pine "sticks" together to bring them down from the once-rich Clearfield county forests—was first begun 110 years ago. No rafts had been built for 26 years until old-timers constructed the one pictured here as a final gesture of farewell to the dead industry. Note the huge sweep oar used as a rudder. Another is at the other end of the raft. The crew shelter is almost hidden by the scores of passengers and observers who made the trip.

CLUB NOTES

Hopewell

The Hopewell Demonstration club met at the home of Mrs. Elbert Burke March 10, with nine old members, five new members and several visitors present. The new members were Mrs. Jack Conway, Mrs. Bertha Wise, Mrs. Orrie Gilbert, Mrs. Clifton Breed and Miss Oltavone Breeding.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Spruell. The song, "Revive Us Again" was sung. Then followed a discussion of a play to be given at some later date. A committee was appointed to select and order a suitable play. It was decided to have another auction sale at Mrs. John Fowler's Tuesday, March 22, to get money for books and other expenses. The members voted for the treasurer to mail the money to Mrs. Bullington for our yearbooks since she was not present.

During the recreational hour a bridal shower was given to Mrs. Irvin Burke, who will be remembered as Miss Enloe Breeding. The hostess served delicious refreshments.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Henry Fowler. Let everyone try to be present and bring their complete reports.

Old Liberty

The Home Demonstration club met March 17 at the home of Mrs. S. B. Bristow with nine old members and two new members present.

The president opened the meeting and minutes of the previous meeting were read, which followed with roll call by the secretary.

Miss Bullington being absent, a demonstration was given by Mrs. O. H. Bristow.

The hostess served delicious cake and coco.

The club was dismissed to meet with Mrs. Frank Shearer in April.

County Council

The McCaskill Home Demonstration club will be hostess to the first County Council meeting of home demonstration clubs for 1938, according to announcement made by Mrs. Wilbur D. Jones, President of the county council. The meeting will be at the Methodist church in McCaskill on Thursday, March 31, beginning at 10 a. m.

The program for the day will feature the live-at-home program, community activities, and home industries. These numbers will be given by the home demonstration agent and club members. The county agent will give a discussion on the 1938 Farm program.

All members are asked to bring a pot luck lunch and spread with the McCaskill club during the noon hour. Mrs. Dora Wortham, Mrs. C. A. Hamilton, and Mrs. C. S. Bitticks are members of the entertainment committee for the McCaskill club.

Quilt Is Memorial to War Veterans

BURNSVILLE, N. C.,(AP)—The names and records of Yancey county's 350 World war veterans are all neatly preserved for posterity in the stitches of a quilt.

Mrs. W. B. Robertson made the memorial quilt after spending four years collecting the names. She is the wife of a doctor and with her husband's help checked even the most remote coves of the mountainous country to make sure the list was complete.

A soldier's name is stitched into each square of the quilt. After the name of one who is no longer living is a gold cross and underneath the name a symbol to show where he died.

Justice Butler 72 St. Patrick's Day

Born, as was his father, on St. Patrick's Day, Supreme Court Justice Pierce Butler celebrated his 72d birthday in typically conservative fashion. He is pictured above, waving his cane in greeting to the photographers who snapped him leaving his home for a routine day at his office.

70% OF ALL ILLNESS CAUSED BY WHAT YOU EAT

MAYBE you can't smell or taste the spoilage; but does that mean it's not there? A noted Eastern hospital says: "70% of ALL ILLNESS is caused by what you eat or drink!" Remember this: it's always summer, in your kitchen. At 70 degrees or higher, food and milk spoil fast. And milk is most dangerous just before it tastes sour!

Your family deserves the protection of Servel Electrolux—the Gas or Kerosene refrigerator—winter and summer. NOW. Servel Electrolux is the one refrigerator which supplies steady, unvarying cold. And it won't dry out meat and leftovers. Nor wilt vegetables. Servel Electrolux is different from all others—a different kind of refrigerator. It has no moving parts. Nothing to wear. No noise—ever. A tiny gas or kerosene flame takes the place of all machinery—and operates here for as little as 2 or 3 cents per day! A small down payment puts Servel Electrolux in your home; savings pay the rest. Why not start them NOW?

Mine Is MORE Than Paying for Itself!"

"I wish to take this opportunity of expressing my opinion of the Servel Electrolux. I have owned my Electrolux for over a year and do not see how I got along without it before I made this purchase. It is always silent, so economical to operate that I notice no difference in my gas bill, can always depend on it when I need refrigeration, and the monthly payments are so small that I really save money even while paying out the box."

"This is to certify that I am the owner and user of a SERVEL ELECTROLUX KEROSENE REFRIGERATOR, which I have operated for the past two and one-half years. This refrigerator has given perfect satisfaction and requires practically no care. I have not been out 10c for repairs and it has cost me exactly $1.50 per month to operate. I feel that my Kerosene Electrolux Refrigerator would be the last thing in my house that I would give up, as it saves more than it costs."

STORIES IN STAMPS

Flowers That Grow On Trees

FLAMING, exotic little flower, the orchid has fascinated men for 300 years since its discovery in the New World and for centuries before that in the Old. Men have died that milady might wear one on her shoulder; that a new and more beautiful bloom might be brought back from the jungles to civilization.

For the tropics is the orchid's natural home. And usually it is found on tree tops!

Costa Rica is the most notable orchid country in the world. There the blooms range from some of the largest blossoms ever seen to those so small as to be almost imperceptible except by closest observation. Generally the orchid is found with its roots fastened into the mossy bark of the tallest trees, set amid a growth of verdant ferns and tropical plant life.

More recently orchids have been cultivated in the United States. They are started in test tubes from powder-like seeds and they are watched through seven years before they finally burst into full gorgeous bloom. Shown here is the purple orchid on a new Costa Rica stamp, depicting native industries.

Today's Answers to CRANIUM CRACKERS

Problem on Page One

No, Rogers is not in any way obligated to keep the lower portion of the building in repair unless by contract he had agreed to do so. Rogers cannot deliberately destroy the supports to the second floor, but, on the other hand, he need not maintain them. Rice has an easement in the present building for support for the second floor as long as the present building lasts, but when it is destroyed by time or by fire or in some other manner, his easement likewise is destroyed. Possibly if the lower floor were rebuilt in substantially the same condition as it originally was, then Rice's easement or right to support would continue, but as that is something entirely within Rogers' control it has little practical value to Rice.

MacPhail's Cooperation Gives Grimes New Hope With Dodgers

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service

CLEARWATER, Fla.—The most important addition to the Brooklyn boys this spring?

Dolph Camilli?

Leo Durocher?

"No, sir-ee," says Burleigh Grimes. "The biggest improvement in the Brooklyn club this trip is Larry MacPhail."

Now, Larry MacPhail can't hit, run, or throw strikes from center field, nor is Burleigh Grimes simply flattering his new general manager. Boiling Boily is fully as tactful as Dizzy Dean. Old Wire Whiskers always has said exactly what he meant, no matter how painful.

"MacPhail gives a guy something to work with," asserts Grimes.

The Dodger director refers to MacPhail's so quickly satisfying the great right-hander, Van Lingle Mungo, and obtaining Camilli from the Phillies.

The sum paid the Philadelphia outfit for the first baseman is variously estimated, $20,000 being the lowest figure and $75,000 the highest. The Brooklyn club is so hard pressed financially that it is suspected that it shortly will be sold. I asked Grimes where MacPhail got the money.

"He's a houdini," replied Boiling Boily.

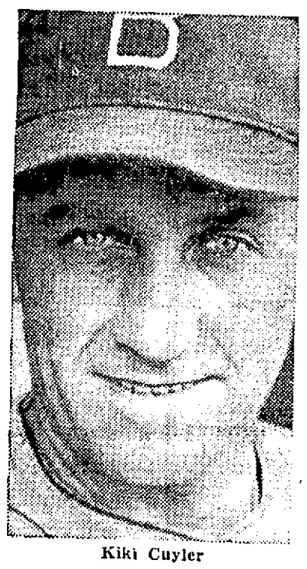

Counts on Durocher

Brooklyn finished sixth last term with the poorest kind of a defense. A

Jack Winsett

Bill Posedel

Kiki Cuyler

bad arm rendered Mungo useless after July. Buddy Hassett, Cookie Lavagetto, Al Butcher, and Joe Stripp were out for protracted periods.

Grimes gave the St. Louis Cardinals four athletes who weren't doing him any good—Stripp, Johnny Cooney, Jimmy Bucher, and Roy Henshaw—for one he believes will make his infield Durocher.

Leo Durocher still is the finest fielding shortstop in the business, despite a miserable year at bat in 1937. Durocher hit .286 in 1936, and his having another such year easily might take the Dodgers a long, long way.

His success with the veteran Heinie Manush in 1937 prompted Grimes to sing another oldtimer, Kiki Cuyler, who is to start in center field. As he chooled Augie Galan in Chicago, Cuyler now is instructing Hassett in leftfielding, to which the agile first baseman of the Bronx has been forced by the acquisition of Camilli.

Lavagetto found himself at third base at the fag end of last season, and with young Pete Coscarart, a flossy fielder from the Portland Coasters, at second, Grimes sees his defense increasing the efficiency of his pitchers to a considerable degree.

Posedel Looks Promising

With the soreness out of his arm, Mungo is the perfect bellwether. Luke Hamlin, Max Butcher, and George Jeffcoat round out the Big Four at the moment, with wise old heads,

Van Mungo

Waite Hoyt, Freddie Fitzsimmons, and Fred Frankhouse ready to step in.

Others on the staff are Bill Posedel, Forrest Pressnell, Walt Signer, Charley Marrow, Jack Kimball, and Alta Cohen, the only left-hander.

Posedel bagged 45 games for the Portland Coasters in two campaigns. Pressnell, Signer, Marrom, who stands six feet four, and Cohen are out of the American Association. Signer, hurt in 1937, led the New York-Pennsylvania League in effectiveness in 1936. Kimball had a good year with Elmira.

The giant Babe Phelps' hitting would cove ra multitude of sins bthind the bat, but the truth is that the mighty Marylander is a fair sort of backstop. Roy Spencer is an excellent handler of pitchers, and there are worse catchers than Paul Chervinko, the former Illinois footballer.

Camilli was the slickest fielding first baseman in the National League last season, and 11 of his 27 home runs were swatted away from the handy right field wall of Baker Bowl.

Because he is the only extra hand who can play second base, Woody English is assured the infield utility role. Red Brown and Johnny Hudson, who hit .292 for Louisville, will fight it out for the other extra infield position. George Fallon, up from Elmira, and Berthold Haas, brought in from Clinton, require further seasoning.

Holds Hopes for Winsett

Grimes hopes to have six fellows hitting .300 or more in his batting order at all times, and intends to switch his outfielders to meet the opposition's pitching. He has the left-hand hitters, Manush, Hassett, Jack Winsett, and Goodwin Rosen, who hit .312 for Louisville, and the right-hand batters, Cuyler, and Gil Brack.

George Cisar, up from Clinton, and Art Parks, in from Elmira, have yet to establish themselves as major league hitters.

So has Winsett, the $40,000 bust of 1937, but Grimes hasn't given up the big Tennessean who manufactured 50 home runs for Columbus in 1936.

"Winsett could bat us into the first division," remarked Old Wire Whiskery, as Long Jack smacked the sphere 500 feet over the center field wall at Brooklyn Park here.

Winsett took too many good pitches last season, and may yet live up to his AA reputation if Grimes can convince him that a ball player can't get a hit with his bat on his shoulder.

London Suburb Gets the Creeps

LONDON—(AP)—A "ghost house," complete with practically all the noises except clanking chains, has some of the more superstitious residents of a London suburb alarmed.

Furniture has been overturned and crockery moved from kitchen table to floor, according to reports, to the accompaniment of tapping noises and long drawn-out moans.

Many persons have urged that a priest be called to exorcise the place. But an authoress who has become interested in the case thinks this should only be tried as a last resort. She suggests the residents of the house try to communicate with the "spirit."

Arkansas College Cage Team Back From Denver

BATESVILLE, Ark.—Coach Robert Lee Calaway and members of the Arkansas College basketball squad who participated in the National A. A. U. tournament at Denver, Colo., last week were honored in a special chapel exercise Tuesday.

Dr. John Crockett, president, presented the state A. A. U. championship trophy won at Conway and praised the team and coach.

Probably the most novel gift to the Panthers was a toy train, given by O. B. Taunton, cheer leader. The toy train was given because of publicity before their departure for Denver in which a news story said that three members of the team had never seen a train before they came to college.

Three of the team members: Charles and Chaney Taylor and Kohn Bray, hail from Cove City, and there is no train running into that city.

Ouachita Grid Team to Play Kansas State

ARKADELPHIA, Ark.—(AP)—Coach Bill Walton announced Tuesday that his Ouachita College football team would play Kansas State of Emporia at Fort Smith, October 28.

He also has booked games with St. Mary's University of San Antonio, Texas, Oklahoma Baptist University, Arkansas State Teachers, Henderson and Hendrix.

Stanford Cage Athlete Signs Movie Contract

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—(AP)—Hank Luisetti, sensational Stanford basketball player, signed a contract to play the lead in a Paramount movie titled "Campus Confessions."

It was said he would receive $10,000. Generally considered to be the greatest basket ball star ever developed on the Pacific coast, Luisetti established a new collegiate scoring mark for four years of competition this season with 1,596 points, 64 more than the previous record.

Firemen to Attend Training Schools

Program Is to Promote Improved Techniques Among Companies

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—Tentative arrangements for a series of fire training schools in Arkansas cities have been completed, it was announced Wednesday by Henry A. Ritgerod, chief of the bureau of municipal researc at the University of Arkansas, which, in co-operation with the Arkansas Municipal League, is one of the sponsors of the program.

Purpose of the proposed training program is to promote the use of improver techniques among municipal fire companies, especially among volunteer organizations which have been without the benefit of professional instruction. Carl Smalley, recently appointed supervisior of fire training by the General Extension Service of the University, will teach the classes.

In addition to ading the organization of this fire training program, the bureau is formulating plans for the development of a fire-fighters handbook as a reference text for all firemen taking instruction. It will contain information on the proper use of various types of equipment, first aid treatment, and other allied subjects, and will serve to keep alive improved techniques after the actual instruction has ceased, Mr. Ritgerod points out.

Fire training schools, although new in Arkansas, have been successfully conducted in other states, he declares.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." More Trouble for TVA: Where to Put the Fish

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—The Tennessee Valley Authority has a major fish problem.

The mighty concrete dams strung along the Tennessee river and some of its tributaries are changing running streams into still pools and upsetting native fish life. They are causing furrows on the brows of anglers and scientists alike.

Exactly what the effect may be on the private lives of the fish is not yet known but the TVA with the co-operation of state and federal fisheries officials has started a study to find out what can be done about it.

Some experts believe that stocking the streams and pools with the proper kind of fish and furnishing the necessary protection may make this section one of the finest fishing spots in the country. The anglers hope they are right.
